Dear

Our names are Coen and Ava and we are the Head Boy and Girl at Newburgh C.E. Primary School. We are currently undertaking a project to secure a class set of 30 new Chromebooks.

We are seeking the help of local businesses to help us fund these Chromebooks so we can equip the pupils at Newburgh with essential and efficient learning resources to support the continued delivery of high-quality education.

A chrome book currently costs our school £180 and this also includes the licences to support online security. Any contribution you can make will be greatly appreciated and will help us reach our goal.

Kind regards,

Ava Coen

Message from the headteacher:

Thank you for reading the above letter from our Head Boy and Girl. To explain our situation a little more, our school was inspected by Ofsted and SIAMS in May 2024 and was graded outstanding by both. Our school is dedicated to nurturing the minds and talents of the next generation, providing high-quality education and essential digital literacy skills for all pupils. This project aims to bridge the digital divide, provide access to essential learning resources, and equip our pupils with the technology skills necessary for their future success.

Despite the rich opportunities provided at our setting by the staff, that was celebrated in our inspections, funding remains a challenge for our school. This is because we are not located in a deprived area and are therefore not entitled to additional funding streams; our children however are still entitled to the same high-quality technology to embed or enhance their opportunity to learn across the curriculum!

In return for your generosity, we would be happy to offer recognition, which could include:

- A mention in our weekly school newsletter and on our official website
- Placement of your company logo on a donated device
- Social media shout-outs within our school community

Thank you in advance for considering our request.

Kind regards
