The Stations of the Cross, also known as the Via Dolorosa or the Way of the Cross, are a traditional way of reflecting on the journey of Jesus to his crucifixion. As far back as the fourth century, pilgrims flocked to the Holy Land to walk the route he had carried the cross. The Stations offer a way to immerse ourselves in this familiar story.

Palm Sunday and Good Friday afford us another opportunity to reflect on the Passion and death of Jesus. They are the only two occasions when the congregation is invited to take part in the reading of the Gospel. What strikes you today as you play your part? Do you feel uncomfortable when you answer 'Not I, Lord, surely?' to Jesus' assertion that someone will betray him? What about when you join in with the crowd calling for Jesus to be crucified, or mocking him on the cross?

We begin Holy Week today with an account of the triumphant entrance of Jesus into Jerusalem, but it is a short-lived triumph. In a few short days we will celebrate the Lord's passion and death. There is a lot to reflect on in these days of Holy Week. By Easter Sunday, will we be able to recognise, like the crowd at the end of today's Passion, 'In truth this was a son of God'?
