Reading in KS2: Pleasure, purpose and progress with James Clements

Burley Woodhead C of E Primary has been designated by the DfE as the primary English Hub, covering Bradford, and North Yorkshire. Our remit is to support schools with early language development, age appropriate phonics provision and promoting a love of reading.

As part of our Reading for Pleasure series of events this half term, Burley Woodhead English Hub will be hosting a free webinar delivered by James Clements, focusing on reading for pleasure in KS2.

Outline of the session

In this webinar, education researcher and writer James Clements will explore some practical approaches to supporting children's reading as they move through KS2, focusing on:

- Building fluency
- Supporting comprehension
- Developing and maintaining a positive attitude to reading
- Thinking, discussing and responding to texts

The session will consider elements of curriculum design and classroom teaching strategies to help teachers and school leaders to reflect on the model they use at the moment, identifying the strengths and exploring how other possibilities might fit into their current system.
