Headteacher – Mrs Kelly Ellis

We thank our PTFA for organising our Valentines Break the Rules Day and the Valentine's notes in school.

Next week is our half-term break. We wish our families an enjoyable break and look forward to seeing the children back on Monday 24th February.

Science Letter

The letter from Mrs Woodbridge-Stocks, that was emailed to parents earlier this week accompanies this newsletter.

It's that time again: WORLD BOOK DAY on Thursday 6th March.

Our theme for this year is 'Read Your Way' so children are invited to come to school dressed in whichever book character they wish! Alternatively, they can come to school in non-uniform with their favourite book.

St. Hardulph's will also be entering a competition with National Book Tokens to win book tokens for our school. Children who enter must design a book token front cover using the template provided, based on the theme 'Read Your Way'. Some tips:

What does 'read your way' mean to you – and how can you explain this in pictures or designs?

What would make someone want to buy your gift card as a gift for someone else? Look at real-life examples of gift cards in supermarkets and other shops – what do they have in common? Which ones do you like best and why?

A parent needs to complete the form to go with the design, bring it into school and we will post it! Entries must be in by Friday 13th March. First prize is £350 national book tokens for our school and £100 national book tokens for the child.

ParentPay

Children's ParentPay accounts are set up with the parent who is 'Priority 1' contact on our records. If any family needs a second parent to be setup, please let us know.
